Reporting an Aggravated Assault Resulting in Death

All offenses should be reported according to the time and date it becomes known to law enforcement. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is currently collecting data for the current and previous years. Reporting aggravated assaults resulting in death is dependent on the year of the assault and the year of the victim's death (murder).

Assault in Previous Year and Death in Current Year – Delete the original incident reflecting the aggravated assault and submit a new incident reflecting the murder; use the same incident number if possible.

Example: (Current Year = 2018)

A man is stabbed in November 2017 and dies in March 2018 from his injuries. The 2017 incident reflecting the aggravated assault is deleted from the MICR database and a new incident reflecting the murder is submitted; use the date of death as the 2018 incident date.

Assault Two Years Prior to Current Year and Death in Current Year – Do not delete the original incident reflecting the aggravated assault. A new incident MAY be created reflecting the victim's death/murder; this is left to the discretion of each agency.

Example: (Current Year = 2018)

A man is shot in October of 2016. The man dies as a direct result of his gunshot wound injuries in January of 2018. Do not delete the original 2016 incident. If applicable, resubmit the incident with arrest or clearance information. The agency may submit a new 2018 incident reflecting the murder.
